

Making Reasonable Adjustments

Wednesday 17th June 2015 | 9am – 5pm | Rowan Williams Court, Medway Campus

Aim of the day:

The aims of the day are for participants to be:

1. Able to share collaborative initiatives of adjusting care and support for people with learning disabilities
2. To participate in reflective groups to further develop your current implemented initiatives
3. To be able to stimulate the Community of Practice and further exploit your membership by networking with other members in a creative approach to problem solving

Keynote speaker:

Professor Chris Hatton, Centre for Disability Research (CeDR), Lancaster University, UK.

We are very keen to hear from anyone who would like to present with information you are currently implementing or developing which you feel addresses reasonable adjustments amongst people with learning disabilities, and should like to invite anyone with an interest in learning disability and mental or physical health.

Please see <https://kentlivewell.wordpress.com/> for details.

You can register for your place today at <http://ldcop15.eventbrite.co.uk>

Follow us on Twitter today @kandmldcop and be a part in the conference conversations by using our hashtag - #ldcop15

